This cause came on to be heard on the transcript of the record from the Supreme Court of the State of North Carolina, and was argued by counsel.

Per Mr. Chief Justice Hughes.

The Chief Justice announced the following orders of the Court:

The State of Louisiana, Complainant,

8, Original. vs. DECREE.

The State of Mississippi, Defendant.

This cause coming on for hearing by this Court upon the report of Thomas G. Haight, Special Master appointed by this Court, and herein filed, and upon the exceptions filed herein by the State of Mississippi, defendant, to said report of the Special Master, including the findings of fact, conclusions of law, and recommendations for a decree, and also upon all pleadings and exhibits thereto heretofore filed by both complainant and defendant, and also upon all depositions of witnesses and documentary and record evidence adduced, preferred, filed, and submitted both by complainant and defendant and upon all briefs of counsel both for complainant and defendant heretofore filed and submitted; and thereupon, on February 2nd, A D 1931, this Court having rendered an opinion sustaining all the findings and recommendations of the Special Master, and directing that a decree should be entered as recommended by the Special Master; and the Court being fully advised in the premises:

It is thereupon considered, and now ordered, adjudged and decreed by this Court, as follows, to wit:—

1. That the bill of complaint has been sustained by sufficient and legal evidence, and that complainant, the State of Louisiana, is at law and in equity entitled to the relief prayed for.

2. That the report of Thomas G. Haight, Special Master, be and the same is hereby approved, sustained, and confirmed by this Court, and that the exceptions to said report filed by the State of Mississippi be and the same are hereby overruled.

3. That immediately prior to the avulsion of 1912-1913 the boundary line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Mississippi between latitude 32° 39′ on the North and the division line between Issaquena and Warren Counties, Mississippi, (as extended westward), on the South, was at the place and line which was the thread of the main channel of the Mississippi River as it then ran; and that, the current having since ceased to flow in part of said channel as it existed prior to said avulsion, because of the new channel produced thereby, at this time the true boundary line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Mississippi, in that part and so much of the above area as was affected by the avulsion (between said North and South points), is the middle of the navigable channel of the Mississippi River as said channel was located at the time when the current ceased to flow therein because of the new channel produced by the avulsion of 1912-1913.

4. That Samuel S. Gannett, geodetic and astronomic engineer, of Washington, D. C., is hereby named and appointed as commissioner, with power, authority and instructions to run, locate, plat, and mark by suitable permanent boundary markers said boundary line, as above defined, by the use of the most accurate method now known to science and applicable in that locality, between said States between said North and South points, and to make and file in this Court as soon as practicable a full and accurate report of his findings, survey, and plat, and that the same be submitted to this Court for confirmation. And he shall file with his report the field notes of his survey, showing the method used by him in ascertaining and locating the line of the boundary, and a map showing the boundary line as run and marked by him; also 10 copies of his report and map. Said line when ascertained and located in accordance with this decree and approved and confirmed by the Court, is the boundary line between the State of Louisiana and the State of Mississippi between the North and South points hereinabove mentioned.

5. Before entering upon his work the commissioner shall take and subscribe his oath to perform his duties faithfully and impartially. He shall prosecute the work with diligence and despatch, and shall have authority to employ such assistants as may be needed therein; and he shall include in his report a statement

6. The work of the commissioner shall be subject in all its parts to the approval of the Court. One copy each of the commissioner's report and map shall be promptly transmitted by the clerk to the Governors of the two States; and exceptions or objections to the commissioner's report, if there be such, shall be presented to the Court, or, if it be not in session, filed with the clerk, within forty days after the report is filed.

7. That the sum to be allowed the commissioner hereby appointed, in payment of his services and reimbursement of his expenses, shall be fixed and allowed after the submission to this Court and confirmation by it of his report, findings, survey and plat.

8. If, for any reason, there occurs a vacancy in the commission when the Court is not in session, the same may be filed by the designation of a new commissioner by the Chief Justice.

9. That there is allowed and awarded to Thomas G. Haight, Special Master, the sum of $2500 for services performed as such Special Master, and the sum of $281.56 for expenditures and disbursements by him as such Special Master in the performance of his duties.

10. That all costs incurred in this suit by both complainant and defendant to and including the date of the rendition of this decree be and the same are hereby taxed and charged against the defendant, State of Mississippi, and are ordered and decreed to be paid by the State of Mississippi; that the costs and expenses that may hereafter be incurred and allowed by this Court in the ascertaining, marking, surveying and platting of the interstate boundary line by the commissioner, in pursuance of this decree, be and the same are hereby ordered and decreed to be paid one-half by complainant and one-half by defendant.

By the Court:

Complainant,

12, Original. vs.

vs.
The City of New York, Defendant.

17, Original.

ORDER.

This cause came on for hearing on the exceptions of the defendant to the report of the Special Master, and was argued by counsel.

On consideration whereof, It is ordered that a decree be entered declaring that the plaintiff, the State of New Jersey, is entitled to an injunction as prayed in the complaint, but that before injunction shall issue a reasonable time will be accorded to the defendant, the City of New York, within which to carry into effect its proposed plan for the erection and operation of incinerators to destroy the materials such as are now being dumped by it at sea or to provide other means to be approved by the decree for the disposal of such materials. And, inasmuch as the evidence does not disclose what is such reasonable time the case is referred to the same Special Master for findings of fact upon that subject. He is authorized and directed to hear witnesses presented by each of the parties, and, should he deem it necessary so to do, to call witnesses of his own selection and then with all convenient speed to report to the Court his findings and a form of decree.

Carbice Corporation of America,

Petitioner,

54 vs.

American Patents Development Corporation and Dry Ice Corporation of America.

On writ of certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

As appears by the opinion of this Court filed March 9, 1931, it was held, upon the original argument of this case, that the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals should be reversed and the bill be dismissed on the ground that the owner of a patent may not limit its use so as to require that the unpatented materials employed in practicing the invention shall be purchased from the licensor. Upon petition of the Carbice Company that the Court determine whether the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals should not be reversed and the bill be dismissed also on the ground that Slate patent No. 1,595,426 is invalid, a re-argument limited to that question was granted. And as appears by the opinion of this Court filed May 18, 1931, it was held that the patent is invalid.

On consideration whereof, It is now here ordered, adjudged, and decreed by this Court that on both of these grounds the decree of the said Circuit Court of Appeals, in this cause be, and the same is hereby, reversed with costs, and the cause is remanded to the District Court with instructions to dismiss the bill.

The State of Oklahoma, Complainant,

6, Original. vs. MEMORANDUM BY THE CLERK

The State of Texas, Defendant, REGARDING COSTS.

The United States of America, Intervener.

This case was filed December 8, 1919, as No. 27, Original of October Term, 1919. The final decree, removing the case from the docket was entered, March 17, 1930, under the number of No. 6, Original, October Term, 1929.

A survey has been conducted, by the Clerk, of the costs and condition of the finances in this case with a view to separating its several financial elements for final taxation of costs and closing the case on his books.

Monies were deposited with the Clerks of this Court in various sums and at various times by the parties to the "main case" and on behalf of certain interveners; advances of monies were made by the parties in the field; compensation was paid to the several commissioners; special masters; Receiver and his counsel, and the employees of each, by various methods of payment. All of such payments have been identified in the several reports of such commissioners, special masters, and the Receiver, and do not enter directly into the financial adjustment sought to be made by the present Clerk, who is concerned here with the "Court costs" of the litigation.

The death of Mr. Stonier, a deputy clerk familiar with the financial history of the case; the death of Mr. Fain who represented the United States; the death of Mr. Roote, who represented certain interveners, parties to the special issues which were considered by the Court in a five volume record involving the interests of fifty-five interveners; the death of Mr. Judd, who conferred with Mr. Stonier and counsel with respect to the division of costs of printing the various records; the constant changes in the offices of Attorneys General of Oklahoma and Texas; the change on two occasions of the administration of the Clerk's office of this Court and the immense and confused files of this case have made the matter complicated and difficult.

The present Clerk has verified, by examination of the books, accounts and reports and through consultation with the auditors, to his satisfaction, that (a) all expenses and compensation due to the several Commissioners and Special Masters have been paid; (b) that all printing bills incurred for printing records, reports of Commissioners and Special Masters have been paid; and (c) that the financial aspects of the Federal Receivership, in so far as they relate to the duty of the Clerk in the case are settled.

The Clerk has identified each and every deposit of monies made with him, or his predecessors, and each and every disbursement made by him, or his predecessors, in the case and has verified the correctness thereof from the books and through the auditors of Ernst and Ernst, employed by the Court to make annual inspections of the Clerk's accounts.

The review of action taken thus far, and the examination and verification of the correctness of each step narrows the remaining work for the settlement of the case to the taxation of the Clerk's costs due as the final step to close the case on the books of the Clerk.

The deposits, credits, advances and payments to and through the Clerk's office total $83,235.63 - (this sum does not contemplate payments, etc., made by the parties in the field regarding which investigation has been made and, so far as they are connected with the duties or responsibilities of the Clerks in this case, they are accounted for and have been properly adjusted.) From the total sum of deposits, credits, advances and payments above stated, the Clerks have disbursed $65,021.25 and such disbursements have been audited and certified correct by Ernst and Ernst. This leaves a balance of $18,232.38 in the hands of the Clerk to be accounted for in the taxation of fees due him under the Rules, and by refunds of any balances due to the parties entitled thereto.

The branch of the case, involving certain special issues, which was referred to James M. Hill, Esquire, as Special Master, (Order of January 19, 1925), was settled on May 14, 1925, pursuant to the order of the Court (Order of May 11, 1925). The cost of printing the Special Master's Report and taxed Clerk's costs were charged against deposits made by the parties to the special issues involved and balances of deposits refunded. The Clerk's accounts covering this settlement and these refunds have been verified and certified by the auditors, and are, therefore, not considered in this memorandum.

The decree of this Court dated March 12, 1923, (261 U. S. 340), specifies that "The cost of executing this decree, including the compensation of the Commissioners, shall be borne in equal parts by the State of Oklahoma, the State of Texas and the United States", and subsequent decrees of the Court, in later phases of the case adopted a similar distribution of the costs, and it is presumed that the Clerk's costs should follow and be computed on the same basis of distribution.

Payments to the printers for the cost of printing records were, therefore, made upon that basis, either from monies on deposit, or by direct payment to the printers by the parties in the amount of their respective shares.

The supervising fee upon: (a) the record in the main case, part 1 - 3 vols; (b) record in the main case, part 2 - 6 vols; (c) Interveners record 5 vols., and (d) Agreed record on the 100th Meridian, 1 vol., has been taxed pursuant to the Rule of this Court applicable to this case. Applying the division of costs similar to that specified in the decree of March 12, 1923, one-third of the supervising fee was taxed against the States of Oklahoma and Texas respectively and the one-third taxed against the United States charged off, since Clerk's costs are not taxable against the United States. (Reference is made to a letter of former Mr. Chief Justice Taft, December 20, 1921, in regard to the treatment of costs of the United States in this case.)

After deducting from the several deposits, credits, payments and advances all disbursements made and certified to by the auditors, the supervising fee, taxed as above stated, has been deducted from the balances on hand, held to the credit of the parties to the main case.

In the instance of the Interveners on the special issues the same treatment was adopted, except that the supervising fee was deducted from the gross deposit made by the "Committee of the Interveners", which committee acted on behalf of all parties to the said special issues.

This leaves the financial condition of the case, in the Clerk's Office as follows:

Balance on hand to credit of Oklahoma.	$4,673.63
Balance on hand to credit of Texas	4,623.63
Balance on hand to credit of the United States	0,000.00
Balance on hand to credit of Interveners Committee	1,147.95

There remains for consideration the matter of Clerk's fees other than the fee for supervising the printing of the records. The taxation of these "other fees" presents, in this case, practical difficulties if the usual method is applied as the Rule does not contemplate a case of this character which is unique in its number of phases and parties. The miscellaneous costs with which the Clerk is now concerned are the numerous small items mainly under Rule 24 (Rules promulgated December 22, 1911, amended, and which apply to this case by reason of the date of its filing). Minute examination of the mass of correspondence and the separation, allocation and taxation individually of the hundreds of "papers filed"; submissions; transfers; appearances; recording fees; etc., etc., would require such time and labor by experienced members of the staff of the Clerk's Office as to suggest that it would be an economically unsound undertaking as the cost of such work would exceed the amount of the fees taxable under

It is therefore respectfully recommended that the Court consider an order which would authorize the Clerk to apply the supervising fee on the several records in accordance with the applicable rule and with respect to the miscellaneous Clerk's costs direct that a "flat fee" be substituted in lieu of applying the usual method of computing the amount of such costs. In the "main case" a flat fee of $500 each taxable against the States of Oklahoma and Texas respectively would represent payment at the rate of $100 per term, or $50 each, (the case was on the docket for ten years), by the parties to the Clerk as compensation for services in the discharge of his duties in this respect.

As to the Interveners, appearances were entered at the hearings before the Commissioner for 54 separate or associated groups of parties and for the United States. To differentiate between these parties and sub-divide the fractions of fees under the usual method of taxing the miscellaneous costs would be laborious and difficult to a point of impracticability. It is therefore, respectfully recommended that in this branch of the case, that the Court consider authorizing the Clerk to apply a flat fee, the amount of which is suggested as $15 for each party, or association of parties, not including the United States or a total sum of $810. This would yield, considering the length of time these parties were on the docket, compensation to the Clerk of approximately $3 per party per term of Court.

If the recommendation of the Clerk for the application of a flat fee in lieu of itemized taxation of the miscellaneous fees is approved, the financial status of the case will be as follows:

Balances on hand after all costs have been paid, which amounts of balances should be refunded to the parties as follows:

To the State of Oklahoma.	$4,173.63
To the State of Texas	4,123.63
To the United States.	0,000.00
To the Interveners Committee.	337.95
Total refunds	$8,635.21	- $8,635.21
Total supervising fees on all records printed plus "flat fees" proposed.		$9,542.12
Clerk's costs on "special issues" before Special Master Hill, taxed May 14, 1925		55.05
Total.		$18,232.38

RECAPITULATION.

Balance of monies on hand to be accounted for		$18,232.38
Total Clerk's costs, including flat fee	$9,542.12
Total refunds due to parties	8,635.21
Earned clerks' costs (Hill report).	55.05
Total	$18,232.38	$18,232.38

If the recommendation of the Clerk is adopted and an order entered making provision for the taxation of costs in this case as herein suggested, the case may be closed on the books of the Clerk.

Very respectfully submitted,

CHARLES ELMORE CROPLEY,

Clerk.

The Chief Justice announced the following orders of the Court:

State of New Jersey, Complainant,

16, Original. vs.

State of New York and City of New York, Defendants, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Intervenor.

DECREE.

This cause came on to be heard by this Court upon the exceptions filed by the complainant and defendants to the report of the Special Master, and was argued by counsel for the States of New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the City of New York.

On consideration whereof, it is now here ordered, adjudged, and decreed by this Court, as follows:

1. That the injunction prayed for by the State of New Jersey so far as it would restrain the State of New York or City of New York from diverting from the Delaware River or its tributaries to the New York City water supply the equivalent of 440 million gallons of water daily be, and the same is hereby, denied, but is granted to restrain the said State and City from diverting water in excess of that amount. The denial of the injunction as above is subject to the following conditions:

(a) Before any diversion shall be made an efficient plant for the treatment of sewage at Port Jervis, New York, shall be constructed and the sewage of Port Jervis entering the Delaware or Neversink Rivers shall be treated to such an extent as to effect a reduction of 85% in the organic impurities. And the effluent from such plant shall be treated with a chemical germicide, or otherwise, so that the B. coli originally present in the sewage shall be reduced by 90%.

Untreated industrial waste from plants in said town of Port Jervis shall not be allowed to enter the Delaware or Neversink Rivers, and the treatment of such industrial wastes shall be such as to render the effluent practically free from suspended matter and non-putrescent; and said treatment of sewage and industrial waste shall be maintained so long as any diversion is made from the Delaware River or its tributaries.

(b) At any time the stage of the Delaware River falls below .50 c. s. m. at Port Jervis, New York, or Trenton, New Jersey, or both (.50 c. s. m. being equivalent to a flow of 1535 c. f. s. at Port Jervis and 3400 c. f. s. at Trenton), water shall be released from one or more of the impounding reservoirs of New York City in sufficient volume to restore the flow at Port Jervis and Trenton to .50 c. s. m., provided, however, that there is not required to be released at any time water in excess of 30% of the diversion area yield, and the diversion area yield having been ascertained to be 2.2 c. s. m., the maximum release required shall be 30% of that amount, or .66 cubic feet per second per square mile of the areas from which water is diverted.

In determining the quantity of water to be released so as to add to the flow of the Delaware River, the Neversink River shall be treated as if it flowed into the Delaware River above Port Jervis, and the number of second feet of water released from the impounding reservoir on the Neversink River shall be added to the number of second feet of water released from other reservoirs, so as to determine whether the quantity of water, required by this decree to be released, has been released.

(c) That the State of New Jersey and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through accredited representatives, shall at all reasonable times have the right to inspect the dams, reservoirs and other works constructed by the City of New York and to inspect the diversion areas and the inflow, outflow and diverted flow of said areas, and to inspect the meters and other apparatus installed by the City of New York and to inspect all records pertaining to inflow, outflow and diverted flow.

2. The diversion herein allowed shall not constitute a prior appropriation and shall not give the State of New York and City of New York any superiority of right over the State of New Jersey and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the enjoyment and use of the Delaware River and its tributaries.

3. The prayer of the intervenor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the present allocation to it of the equivalent of 750 million gallons of water daily from the Delaware River or its Pennsylvania tributaries is denied without prejudice.

4. The prayer of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the appointment of a river master is denied without prejudice.

5. This decree is without prejudice to the United States and particularly is subject to the paramount authority of Congress in respect to navigation and navigable waters of the United States, and subject to the powers of the Secretary of War and Chief of Engineers of the United States Army in respect to navigation and navigable waters of the United States.

6. Any of the parties hereto, complainant, defendants or intervenor, may apply at the foot of this decree for other or further action or relief and this Court retains jurisdiction of the suit for the purpose of any order or direction or modification of this decree, or any supplemental decree that it may deem at any time to be proper in relation to the subject matter in controversy.

7. The costs of the cause shall be divided and shall be paid by the parties in the following proportions: State of New Jersey 35 per cent, City of New York 35 per cent, State of New York 15 per cent, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania 15 per cent.

Per Mr. Chief Justice Hughes.

It is further ordered that the expenses of the Special Master in the sum of $3,283.24 be, and the same are hereby, allowed; and the payment thereof by the parties in the proportions fixed by the decree for the division of costs is hereby confirmed.

Mr. Attorney General Mitchell addressed the Court as follows:

"May it please the court:

"During the December recess of this Court members of its Bar assembled here to express their profound regret at the death of William Howard Taft, tenth Chief Justice of the United States, and to make a permanent record of their high regard for his devoted public service. That gathering included many men, themselves distinguished for public service, lifelong friends of the late Chief Justice, who paid eloquent and loving tribute to his memory. A minute was prepared, reviewing the principal events of his career, and the following resolutions were adopted:

"'William Howard Taft was born in the city of Cincinnati, Ohio, September 15, 1857. He was graduated with distinction at Yale University in 1878 and at the Cincinnati Law School in 1880. He was called to public service within a year after his admission to the bar, first as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney at Hamilton County, Ohio, and then as Assistant County Solicitor. In 1887 he was appointed by Governor Foraker to succeed Hon. Judson Harmon as judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati. Three years later, in 1890, he was appointed by President Harrison Solicitor General of the United States. After two years' service in that office he was appointed Circuit Judge of the United States for the Sixth Judicial Circuit. His three years' service in the Ohio State Court had given Mr. Taft not only an insight into the interest and importance of the judicial office, but had awakened in him a love of the judicial function which deeply marked his character and colored his entire future career. He threw himself with ardor into the varied work of a federal circuit judge, which at that period required him to sit in courts of first instance, at law and in equity, and even on the criminal side, as well as to participate with his associates in the appellate work which the Evarts Act of 1890 devolved upon the newly created Circuit Court of Appeals, a jurisdiction which in a large and important class of cases was final. By his learning and industry, his keen sense of values, his broad human understanding and his appreciation of the supreme importance of the administration of justice, Judge Taft soon established a high reputation as one of the ablest members of the federal judiciary. In the year 1896 Judge Taft, in connection with Judson Harmon, Lawrence Maxwell, and others, reorganized the Cincinnati Law School, adopted the Harvard case book method of teaching, and started it upon a career of enlarged activity. He accepted the position of dean, as well as lecturer on real property law, and discharged the duties of both those positions until his resignation from the bench in 1900.

"'When the termination of the war with Spain left the United States with the responsibility for the future of the Philippine Islands, President McKinley called upon Judge Taft to head a commission of distinguished Americans to proceed to those islands, study the conditions prevailing in them, and make a report with recommendations as to the future relations of the Government of the United States to those islands and their people. There was little in his assignment which appealed to a Federal judge devoted to his judicial work and ardently believing that the administration of justice was the supreme concern of mankind. But the appointment was tendered him by the President as a call to public duty, and such an appeal never was made to him in vain. At the conclusion of the work of the Philippine Commission Mr. Taft was appointed first civil governor of the islands, serving in that capacity until February 1, 1904, when he was appointed Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt, from which he resigned in June, 1908, because of his impending nomination for the Presidency, to which he was elected in November of that year. Space is lacking here for an appraisal of the value of the distinguished public service rendered by Mr. Taft as civil governor of the Philippines, as Secretary of War, or as President of the United States. But it is peculiarly appropriate to this occasion to note that few Presidents, if any, have been called upon to appoint so large a number of Federal judges as he, and by none was a higher standard of learning and personal character required in his nominees. During his four years of the presidency he selected five Associate Justices and one Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The choice of the Chief Justice gave him more anxious thought than any other. Departing from precedents, he nominated to the chief justiceship an associate justice of the court, Edward D. White, of Louisiana, who also was a Democrat and a former Confederate soldier. This nomination was promptly confirmed by the Senate and met with universal approval on the part of the bar and the people of the country. It had been Mr. Taft's greatest ambition himself to become Chief Justice, and in selecting Judge White for that position he was putting another man into the only post in the Government he had ever really yearned to fill. On June 21, 1921, President Harding appointed Mr. Taft Chief Justice to succeed Chief Justice White, who had died a month earlier, and on the retirement of Chief Justice Taft himself, very shortly before his death, President Hoover appointed as his successor Charles Evans Hughes, whom President Taft had appointed an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in 1910 (and who had resigned to accept the Republican nomination for the Presidency in 1916).

"'Mr. Taft is the only American in our history who was the head of two of the three equal and coordinate branches of our Government. But the bench was his career of predilection and he brought to the office of Chief Justice devotion to and enthusiasm in its work, as well as the experience of his long, useful, and varied life in the public service. Aside from his strictly judicial work, the two outstanding events in the history of the court during his incumbency are (1) the passage of the act which greatly limited the number of appeals as of right to the Supreme Court from the final decisions of the Circuit Courts of Appeals, substituting for the right of appeal a discretionary power of review by writ of certiorari, and (2) the enactment by Congress of a law authorizing the construction of a building in which to house the Court and its offices, and the passage of appropriations adequate for the construction of a dignified and beautiful structure, the selection of a site, and the preparation and approval of the plans for the building. To the securing of both of these measures and the planning of the new court building, the Chief Justice devoted much thought and energy, appearing in person before the appropriate congressional committees to fully present all the reasons which had made him an advocate of those measures. His work on the court as reflected in his opinions speaks for itself. The number of opinions he wrote was surprisingly large, and the vigor, clarity, and sureness of touch which they express demonstrate his unquestioned title to a place high in the ranks of the leaders in the American judiciary. This brief sketch of the Chief Justice would be incomplete without an allusion to those personal qualities which endeared him to many people of high and low degree throughout the land. In the truest sense of the word he was a great humanitarian, feeling the keenest sense of sympathy and interest in all that concerned men of all sorts and condition. He truly loved his fellows. He had compassion even for the erring. He found something good in everybody, but no mere sentimentality ever clouded his judgment or stayed the impetuous vigor of his condemnation of dishonesty or mere pretense. Not less characteristic than his broad sympathy was his genial and rescuing sense of humor. Sentiment balanced by humor produced in him a rare sanity of judgment and added to his great gifts of character and intellect the charm of a gracious and winsome personality.

"'It is now resolved, That the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States do hereby record their high appreciation of the long record of devoted and effective service rendered by William Howard Taft to the people of the United States in the many public employments to which he was called, and especially in the exalted office of Chief Justice of the United States.

"'Further resolved, That the Attorney General be asked to present these resolutions to the Court and to request that they be inscribed upon its permanent records. And that the chairman of this meeting be requested to transmit a copy of the resolutions to the family of the late Chief Justice, together with the assurance of the sincere sympathy of the Bar in the great and irremediable loss they have sustained.'

"In obedience to those resolutions I am here to present them and ask that they be entered in the records of the Court.

"Chief Justice Taft was my good friend, and I am grateful for the tradition which gives to the office I hold the high privilege of representing the Bar on this occasion.

"The only man to hold the two greatest offices in the gift of the American people, he had a public career unparalleled in its variety, with great distinction as a teacher, a colonial administrator, and executive, but it is fitting in memorial exercises by the members of the profession which he loved, and for the archives of this Court, that we speak chiefly of his service to the Court and to the cause of justice, and first of that part of his work recorded in the official reports.

"During his service as Chief Justice the Court delivered fifteen hundred and ninety-six (1,596) opinions. One-ninth of that number is one hundred and seventy-seven. He delivered two hundred and fifty-three opinions for the Court, or one-sixth of the total. The nature of the cases and the labor required in each would have to be examined to judge accurately of his relative efforts, but he did his share.

"This is not the occasion to review his judicial opinions at length, but a study of them reveals these things. His public life and experience as an administrator and executive had developed a wisdom and common sense which are disclosed in these writings. His opinions are of the kind which are useful to lawyers. They not only decided the cases presented but they are charts for the future. The style is simple and direct, and he never clouded his thought by self-consciousness in expression. His judgments disclose prodigious energy expended in study and research.

"In assigning cases to members of the Court for preparation of opinions he gave to himself at least an equal share of those dull ones which were interspersed with the important matters before the Court. He seemed to take a special interest in patent and trade-mark cases. He had an unusual facility in that field, and wrote many fine opinions in important patent litigation. It is in constitutional law that his greatest judicial work was done. Of his two hundred and fifty-three opinions seventy dealt with important constitutional questions. That in the Myers case, settling a controversy as old as the Union, respecting the President's exclusive power of removing executive officers, alone would mark him a great constitutional lawyer. The opinions he delivered from this bench, together with two hundred and four others, rendered during his service as a United States Circuit Judge, form an enduring monument to his high judicial qualities.

"Beyond his performance of the routine tasks of a Chief Justice is other service for which we should be grateful.

"When he began his work here as Chief Justice the Court was eighteen months behind in disposing of the cases before it. He took a leading part in devising and procuring the passage by Congress of the act of February 13, 1925, which gave the Court a wide discretion to decide what cases should be brought before it for review, and with that change in procedure as a starting point he and his associates set about the task of bringing the work up to date with such determination and driving force that at the end of his service as Chief Justice in February, 1930, the business of the Court was practically current, and with the completion of that task during the past year it may no longer be said that appeals to this Court are a means of delaying justice or allowing criminals to postpone punishment. Under his leadership this Court has set an example to the courts of the land, and brought home to the profession that it should no longer be taken for granted that courts must always be behind in their work.

"During his incumbency Congress enacted the laws authorizing the construction of a building to be occupied by the Court and its officers. He had largely to do with that and gave constant thought and effort to obtaining the necessary appropriations, acquiring the site, and above all in seeing to it that the building when completed shall be a dignified and beautiful structure. This project was dear to his heart, and we regret that he did not live to see the fulfillment of his efforts. The new Supreme Court building when completed will itself be a memorial of one of his services to the Court.

"He had much to do with the enactment of the law authorizing the judicial conference presided over by the Chief Justice and attended by the senior circuit judges of the ten judicial circuits, which annually considers the operation of our Federal judicial system for the purpose of bringing about administrative and legislative changes to increase efficiency in the administration of justice.

"By his influence for a high standard in judicial appointments he rendered inestimable service to the cause of justice. As President he appointed five associate justices and one Chief Justice of this Court and many judges of the other Federal courts. He spoke of this Court as the chief bulwark of the institutions of civil liberty created by the Constitution, and viewed the appointment of members of the Court as the most sacred duty with which he, as President, was charged. During all his public career, in whatever office he held, his influence was exerted to elevate the standards for judicial appointments and to combat the pressure of political expediency for the selection of mediocre men.

"With all the other demands upon him, he took time to see old friends, to find new ones, to address gatherings of his fellow citizens, and to make those many public appearances expected of one in his position. His big, warm personality, kindliness, and humor, with that infectious chuckle of his, will never be forgotten by those who knew him.

"None of our institutions is so impregnable that popular confidence in and respect for it are not to be desired, and it is well for this Court and for the constitutional rights and liberties which it guards, each time there is chosen for Chief Justice one who in the public estimation is so preeminently fitted that his appointment is generally acclaimed. Chief Justice Taft had that fortunate distinction. What training for this high office could have excelled his! From early youth he was continuously in the public service. Within a year after his admission to the Bar he became prosecuting attorney of his county, then judge of a Superior Court. Forty-one years ago, in this very spot where I now stand, he commenced his service for the Nation, as Solicitor General of the United States, and with but a short interlude continued in the nation's service until he ended it, again in this room as Chief Justice of the United States. From Solicitor General to United States Circuit Judge, then president of the Philippine Commission, civil governor of the Philippine Islands, special representative of his Government on delicate diplomatic missions, Secretary of War, and President. What a preparation for high judicial office! When finally the opportunity came to place him on this Court the whole nation knew that he was qualified by character, learning, and experience. It trusted him and believed in his judicial qualities and in his big-hearted understanding of the problems of plain people.

"He had always yearned for service on this Court. His was a judicial mind. Political life was not congenial to him but fate seemed bound to draw him against his will into the field of political and executive action. It has been said that because of his judicial instincts it was hard for him to adjust himself to the thoughts and feelings and methods of political life in a party sense. Nevertheless, twice he regretfully refused appointment as an Associate Justice of this Court because he felt he could not desert administrative responsibilities.

"He made no secret of his interest in judicial work. Millions of his fellow countrymen knew of these things and sympathized with his aspirations. They held him in affectionate regard. When in 1912 his party, torn by dissension, went down to defeat and he failed of reelection to the Presidency, his lack of bitterness or rancor, his smiling acceptance of his defeat, his frank and humorous public statement that he had retired from the Presidency with the full consent of the American people, met with instant response in the public mind, and from that moment, to an extraordinary degree, he found a place in the affections of the Nation. So when he came at last to the great office of Chief Justice he had the entire confidence and respect of great numbers of his fellow citizens. He held them to the end. His very presence on this Court quickened public interest in its functions, strengthened it in the public regard, and helped to maintain it as the bulwark of the Constitution."

The Chief Justice said:

"Mr. Attorney General, in receiving the resolutions which you have presented we recognize that of all the tributes that have been paid to the memory of this eminent statesman and jurist there could be none which would have been more highly prized by him than this tribute coming from the profession which he loved in recognition of the distinction of his service to the cause which was nearest to his heart.

"Blessed by forbears who had achieved high repute by virtue of eminent talent and public spirit, it may be said that William Howard Taft was born to the purple of the highest advantages which our democracy affords. It was natural that his winning personality, giving play to marked ability, without suggestion of condescension, and distinguished by a nobility of character which scorned all that was sordid, base, or narrow, should have opened early the door of opportunity for public service. The gracious leadership of his youth in the circle of the university prefigured the position which he at once took at the junior bar, and after showing his mettle in his native city as prosecutor and judge, he came, at the age of thirty-three, to the office of Solicitor General of the United States. From that time until his death he exemplified in varied undertakings of grave responsibility the finest type of public servant and enjoyed an increasing general esteem, until, in the closing years, after the wounds of political strife had been healed and the victories of a magnanimous spirit had been acclaimed, he was enriched beyond any man of his time with the wealth of universal affection.

"In other places there have been, and will be, appropriate appreciation of his services as the representative of his country in novel and important duties as executive head of the new government in the Philippines, and as Secretary of War and Chief Magistrate of the Republic. It is for us to recognize with gratitude, and with a deep sense of obligation and of loss, his labors in this Court, which brought his career to the fullness of illustrious accomplishment.

"Chief Justice Taft came to this service with a prestige which added weight to his pronouncements. But in the realm of lofty and conspicuous endeavor, success is never guaranteed by past achievements. It must be rewon daily, and even the highest prestige is put to fresh proof by the inescapable responsibilities of decision. Chief Justice Taft entered the Court with a distinguished reputation, but he left it with an even greater fame securely established.

"This was due to his special qualifications for judicial office, by virtue of training, aptitude, and temperament. His training began, as I have said, almost as soon as he was admitted to the bar. When he took executive office at the age of forty-three he had served nearly eleven years upon the bench and for eight of these years as United States Circuit Judge. In that work he was indefatigable, not only in the Circuit Court of Appeals but at trial terms. One who knew intimately his labors in those days has said that Judge Taft became known to the bar of his circuit as no other circuit judge had ever been before or has been since. Nor was he content with the range of his judicial duty, but in his enthusiasm for legal study he took a leading part in law school organization and teaching. The learning and strength of his judicial opinions as a Circuit Judge made him widely known. His interest was not simply in the right adjudication of particular cases, but in jurisprudence, and he consistently labored in the interest of system and coherence. It was his effort to master the special subject in hand so as to utilize it in giving a chart for the future. A conspicuous instance of this is his opinion for the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit in Addyston Pipe & Steel Company v. United States, delivered in 1898 (85 Fed. 271), containing what was, at that time, perhaps the most thorough exposition in the American reports of the law relating to restraint of trade. The judicial service of his young manhood was rendered with a zest which never abated. And his duties and experiences in executive office heightened for him the never-failing charm of the judicial career, by reason of its independence and impartiality, and its devotion to what he believed to be the paramount interests of the administration of justice. Having begun as a student of the law, he returned to his legal studies when released from executive responsibilities, and as a lecturer on constitutional law he completed his preparation for the great task to which manifest destiny was to call him.

"To Chief Justice Taft, the administration of justice was never an abstract conception, to be extolled in vain phrases and with but slight regard to changes in social conditions and to existing deficiencies. While holding in contempt the fanciful schemes with which the administration of justice in this country is threatened from time to time he was ever pointing out its shortcomings and laboring for its improvement by practicable remedies. It was this concern which gave him a peculiar sensitiveness with respect to the qualifications for judicial office. He realized profoundly that the chief defects of the administration of justice lie in men rather than in method. A good judge, using the means of the com-of an alert and informed mind, will find but rarely that he can not force his way through to effective action. No duty seemed to President Taft more important than that of selecting federal judges. It was his special concern while he had the responsibility of appointment, and his solicitude continued and was constantly expressed after he became Chief Justice. It has fallen to but three Presidents since Washington to appoint a majority of the members of this Court. President Jackson appointed Chief Justice Taney and four Associate Justices. President Lincoln apopinted Chief Justice Chase and four Associate Justices. President Taft appointed Chief Justice White and five Associate Justices. In no act of Mr. Taft's career was his estimate of the requirements of judicial office and his emphasis upon its proper independence of partisan considerations more strikingly shown than in his appointment of Chief Justice White, of a different political faith, but who had represented upon the bench the highest standards of judicial conduct. And we are admonished of the rapidity of the changes in this Court, despite the apparent permanence afforded by the tenure of office, when we reflect that when Chief Justice Taft came to the bench ten years ago only two of his appointees were still in service.

"No learning or information comes amiss to a Justice of this Court. Its members have been drawn from many fields of activity, and to its conferences are brought the wisdom derived from varied experiences in different parts of our land. By reason of the variety and importance of his previous official duties, Chief Justice Taft had in this respect an unusual equipment. The learning and industry of the judge was reenforced by the special knowledge gained in statecraft. He had abundant opportunity to apply this knowledge, and it was applied with judicial independence. As illustrating this, and also as exhibiting the quality of his judicial opinions, reference may be made to Balzac v. Porto Rico (258 U. S. 298) and Yu Cong Eng v. Trinidad (271 U. S. 500), dealing with fundamental questions relating to the administration of our insular possessions; to Stafford v. Wallace (258 U. S. 495), sustaining and construing the Packers and Stockyards Act; to Ex parte Grossman (267 U. S. 87), upholding the power of the President to pardon criminal contempts; and to Myers v. United States (272 U. S. 52), sustaining the President's power of removal.

Because of the interest which he had shown throughout his public life in the problems affecting labor, Mr. Taft was appointed, when the United States entered the War in 1917, cochairman of the War Labor Board. And when he came to this Court no one had a more intimate knowledge of labor conditions in this country or was more highly respected by all those concerned in industry, whether as employers, managers, or employees. There can be no doubt of his special interest in the decisions of this Court affecting labor questions, and upon these questions he delivered many of the Court's most important opinions; as, for example, in American Steel Foundries v. Tri-City Central Trades Council (257 U. S. 184); in United States Mine Workers v. Coronado Coal Company (259 U. S. 344 and 268 U. S. 295); in the Pennsylvania Railroad Company Cases relating to the function of the United States Railroad Labor Board (261 U. S. 172 and 267 U. S. 203); and in Charles Wolff Packing Company v. Industrial Court of Kansas (262 U. S. 522) with respect to the extent of the authority of the State in the regulation of wages in industry.

"Chief Justice Taft had also the technical knowledge and aptitude which gave him a special interest and authority in patent cases, and his skill in this difficult branch of jurisprudence is illustrated in such leading opinions as those in Eibel Process Company v. Minnesota & Ontario Paper Company (261 U. S. 45) and Corona Cord Tire Company v. Dovan Chemical Corporation (276 U. S. 358). The Chief Justice always had an open mind with respect to the necessary adaptation of the authority of government, especially in relation to the broadening requirements of interstate commerce under modern conditions. This was conspicuously shown in the opinions that he delivered for the Court as to the power given to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Transportation Act of 1920, among which may be noted, as of permanent importance because of the principles definitely established, those in the cases of Railroad Commission of Wisconsin v. Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company (257 U. S. 563), relating to the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission over intrastate rates, and Dayton-Goose Creek Railway Company v. United States (263 U. S. 456), with respect to the recapture provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act. To the growing volume of jurisprudence dealing with controversies between States, he made a notable contribution, especially in the case of the Chicago Drainage Canal (278 U. S. 367) and in that of North Dakota v. Minnesota which clearly laid down the essential bases for recovery by one State claiming injury by reason of operations conducted by another. I have not attempted the impossible task of making, upon such an occasion as this, a comprehensive survey or even a just estimate of the judicial service of the late Chief Justice, and I have sought to cite but a few of the many important opinions in which he touched every department of the law as laid down by this Court and which stand as imperishable memorials to his ability and conscientious labor.

"Chief Justice Taft had, as has well been said, 'an almost religious reverence' for the fundamental principles of our system of government. To quote his own words: 'In the Federal Constitution there were embodied two great principles, first, that the Government should be a representative popular government, in which every class in society, the members of which have intelligence to know what will benefit them, is given a voice in selecting the representatives who are to carry on the government and in determining its general policy. On the other hand, the same constitution exalts the personal rights and opportunities of the individual and prescribes the judicial machinery for their preservation, against the infringement by the majority of the electorate in whose hands was placed the direction of the executive and legislative branches of the government.' That was his confession of faith. And he had no sympathy with any attempt to undermine the fundamental protection of fair individual opportunity upon the assumption that social riches could be gained through individual impoverishment. He stood emphatically for the limitations of government under the Constitution and was unwilling to see these limitations exceeded even when legislative phrases were used which would otherwise have been appropriate to the exercise of legislative power. This was conspicuously shown by his opinion in delivering the judgment of the Court holding invalid the child labor tax law (259 U. S. 20) as infringing upon the reserved power of the States. 'To give any such magic,' he said, as was sought to be attributed, 'to the word "tax" would be to break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress and completely wipe out the sovereignty of the States.' But he did not regard the country, as he expressed it, as 'tied to the defects of the past or present,' and he looked for a sure progress through discriminating and far-sighted legislators and through judges of broad vision but imbued with the spirit of the Constitution.

"Chief Justice Taft rarely dissented. In the multitude of cases to which you have referred, Mr. Attorney General, which were decided during his incumbency, I find but seventeen in which he expressed dissent and in but three of these did he write the dissenting opinion.

"Deeply concerned with improvements in administration the Chief Justice gave special attention to his own duty as administrator. Even the distinction of his contribution to the jurisprudence of the Court does not obscure, but throws into a stronger light, by reason of his versatility, his preeminence in the executive department of its work. In the successful endeavor to end the delays which bring such a deserved reproach upon judicial procedure, he was ever a leader, and he would have been the first to recognize the able support which he received from his colleagues in this effort. It was not a vain attempt to bring the Court up to its work by a spasmodic activity, but the intelligent formulation of a plan which receiving the sanction of Congress has put the Court, we trust permanently, upon a basis by which it can keep abreast of the demands upon it. So long as we follow the example which he has set and avail ourselves of the opportunity which his leadership provided, the delays of justice will have no countenance or illustration here.

"But the Chief Justice was not content with expediting the work of this Court. He felt a special responsibility with respect to the entire Federal judicial system. Many years before he came to this bench he had suggested that either the Supreme Court or the Chief Justice should have an adequate executive force to keep current watch upon the business awaiting dispatch in all the districts and circuits of the United States and to make a periodical estimate of the number of judges needed in the various districts and to make the requisite assignments. In a different manner, it was sought to attain the object he had in view by the establishment, in 1922, through his persistence, of the Judicial Conference of the Senior Circuit Judges, held annually, at which the Chief Justice of this Court presides, and which considers the needs of judicial service in the different districts and makes recommendations accordingly. This is an instrumentality of great value, and what it has accomplished and the promise of what it may achieve are due in the largest measure to the foresight and intelligent guidance of Chief Justice Taft.

"No appreciation of the late Chief Justice can stop with appraisal of his intellectual power, or his juristic and executive achievements, or his moral worth. The glow of his warm heart shone through all his activities and irradiated all his associations. As with every virile character, he had ardent sympathies and strong dislikes. But he could not cherish ill will or long harbor a sense of injury. He carried with him an invincible armor of kindliness against which the shafts of opponents had proved harmless. With him, service in the temple of justice was not an austere performance, with the ill-grace of an unnatural aloofness, but a necessary human endeavor, with the dignity of lofty purpose, but pursued with a benignity and an affection for his fellows which made his presence in that temple a constant benediction.

"I should, in these last words, permit those to speak who were associated with him in this work, and I can do no better than to quote what they said to him upon his retirement: 'You came to us from achievements in other fields, and with the prestige of the illustrious place that you lately had held, and you showed in a new form your voluminous capacity for work and for getting work done, your humor that smoothed the rough places, your golden heart that has brought you love from every side, and, most of all, from your brethren whose tasks you have made happy and light.'

"There are those here who have witnessed these memorial exercises in honor of three Chief Justices. In the midst of our efforts, engrossed with present demands, we are moving with a steady and inescapable progress toward the inevitable end. The figures of to-day, like those of yesterday, will soon be replaced, and the best endeavors, striking as they may be in their immediate aspect, will soon form but the background of another picture. Without illusion, and with steady will, we continue in our task, heartened by the exemplars of our faith, among whom no one has a more inspiring or abiding influence than that of the late Chief Justice."

Mr. Attorney General Mitchell addressed the Court as follows:

"May it please the Court:

"On the very day of the death of the late Chief Justice, Edward Terry Sanford, Associate Justice, was suddenly stricken and died. Representatives of the Bar, gathered to pay reverent tribute to his memory, adopted resolutions, which it is now my privilege to present to the Court with the request that they be entered in its records as a token of the high esteem in which Justice Sanford was held by the legal profession.

"'Resolved, That the members of the Bar of the Supreme Court desire to express their profound regret at the death of Edward Terry Sanford, late Justice of the Supreme Court, and to record their high appreciation of his life and character and of his conspicuous and faithful service to his country. He was born on July 23, 1865, in the State of Tennessee. He graduated from the University of Tennessee and then entered Harvard College, where he continued his studies; later on, studying in European universities and at the Harvard Law School. He became a member of the Bar of the State of Tennessee and practiced at Knoxville and throughout the State until the year 1907, when he became one of the Assistant Attorneys General of the United States. After a year in Washington he accepted the office of United States District Judge for the Middle and Eastern Districts of Tennessee. He served as such District Judge for fifteen years with marked ability and with the love and respect of the bar and community. He gave much of his time to the cause of education; was chairman of the board of trustees of the George Peabody College for Teachers; also trustee of the University of Tennessee. He was at one time president of the Alumni Association of the University of Tennessee and, later, president of the Alumni Association of Harvard College. In the year 1923 President Harding named him as Justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy arising upon the resignation of Justice Pitney. He served on this Court with great distinction from the time of his qualification until his untimely death on the 8th day of March, 1930, at the early age of sixty-four. He had a personality of unusual charm and was a most gifted speaker. He was a lover of literature and the arts, was widely read, and deeply experienced in law and jurisprudence. He had ardent patriotism and a high sense of public duty. His work upon the Supreme Court was thorough, conscientious, and exacting, and had the high commendation of his associates and of the Bar. His death is his country's loss, and is mourned by the great circle of his friends and associates both upon the bench and at the bar.

"'Resolved also, That the Attorney General be asked to present these resolutions to the Court and to request that they be inscribed upon its permanent records, and that the chairman of this meeting be requested to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the family of the late Justice with an expression of our sincere sympathy in their bereavement.'

"Justice Sanford's career in the public service had its beginning in the suggestion by Mr. Justice McReynolds, then an Assistant Attorney General of the United States, that he be retained by the Government in the investigation of the Fertilizer Trust in 1905. The marked ability disclosed in that case secured him immediate recognition and resulted in his appointment in 1907 to the position of Assistant Attorney General. While occupying that post he appeared before this Court on several occasions and make a favorable impression by the skill and force with which he presented the cases entrusted to him. He attracted the favorable attention of President Roosevelt, and in 1908 was appointed to be United States District Judge for the Eastern and Middle Districts of Tennessee. He had hoped to have the post of Solicitor General, and accepted the judicial office with some reluctance, not realizing that he had been set upon the path that would lead him to the highest honor open to a member of his profession.

"During the last forty-five years those appointed United States District Judges have averaged forty-nine years of age when appointed. Judge Sanford was forty-three when he became a District Judge. His case is an example of the gain to the judicial service in appointing to the lower federal courts comparatively young men, of character and education, through the opportunities for distinguished judicial careers thus opened up to them.

"His service as a trial judge was one of exacting labor, rendered more than usually arduous by a temperament which demanded that every case be given the most careful and painstaking consideration regardless of its material importance. While at the bar he had shown a marked preference for practice before appellate courts, the quick and undeliberated decisions necessary in trial work being repugnant to his scholarly and rather cautious nature. For the same reason his duties as a District Judge were not entirely congenial to him, since he was constantly faced with the necessity of passing immediately upon questions to which he would have preferred to give more mature consideration.

"Nevertheless, his preferences in no way influenced his achievements, and his record was an enviable one. The high regard in which he was held by those with whom he was associated was made evident by the spontaneous outburst of approval with which they responded to the proposal that he be elevated to the Supreme Court. When the retirement of Mr. Justice Pitney, on December 1, 1922, created a vacancy, the Senate of the State of Tennessee adopted a resolution urging that Judge Sanford be considered for the position, and the overwhelming indorsement then given him by the people from his section of the country, coupled with the desire which had always been his to become a member of an appellate tribunal, must have made his selection for the supreme bench doubly gratifying to

"During the seven years of his service as a Justice of the Supreme Court he delivered the opinion of the Court in 120 cases. These opinions, which are to be found in volumes 261 to 281, inclusive, of the Reports, disclose his scholarly training. In addition to his technical equipment he had that culture and breadth of vision so valuable in high judicial office. His professional learning was supplemented by an intimate familiarity with literature, which gave to his judicial opinions an unusual clarity and attractive style. Endowed by nature with the rare gift of felicitous expression, which he used to such good advantage at the bar, he could not be satisfied with a judicial utterance until it had been subjected to careful scrutiny to the end that the exposition of his views and the process of reasoning upon which they were founded might be full and lucid. His judicial labors were characterized by patient and conscientious deliberation upon every aspect of the case in hand. Fidelity to duty was ever his chief concern.

"His judicial opinions cover most of the branches of the law with which this Court is called upon to deal. Those in the Pocket Veto Case in the 279th, and in the Gitlow and Fiske cases in the 268th and 274th, which dealt with the constitutional validity of State statutes defining criminal anarchy, are examples of the excellence of his judicial work.

"All of his writings indicate a marked adherence to the principles on which our Constitution is based, coupled with an appreciation of the need of adjusting the application of those principles to fit the requirements of changing conditions. Conservative in judgment and strict in his adherence to tested doctrines, he was one of that great body of jurists who have maintained the stability of the common-law system of jurisprudence.

"No tribute to Justice Sanford, however brief, would be complete which touched only upon his professional achievements. His early studies, supplemented by foreign travel, bred in him an enduring appreciation of music, literature, and the fine arts. He was in every sense a man of the highest culture. His mastery of the English language and his training in the field of advocacy combined to make him a speaker of unusual ability and charm. But above all, his dominant traits of character were kindliness and affection for his fellow men. His interests in the fields of education and charity were many. The joys of friendship were his constant and supreme delight.

"The widespread grief occasioned by his death was intensified by the fact that, only sixty-four years of age, his faculties matured by long experience and untiring industry, he appeared to have many years of useful service before him. The Nation has lost an able, high-minded judge, and many of us a gracious friend. Of him it may fittingly be said, as Campbell said of Lord Holt, 'Perhaps the excellence which he attained may be traced to the passion for justice by which he was constantly actuated.'

The Chief Justice said:

"Mr. Attorney General, the Court receives with deep gratification this tribute from the bar to the service of an able and faithful member of this Court, who was taken from us, with tragic suddenness, in the midst of his career.

"The strength of the Court is the resultant of the interaction and cooperation of individual forces, and the successful performance of its function depends upon the discharge of individual responsibility by Justices of equal authority in the decision of all matters that come before the Court. It has recruited its strength both from the bar and from the bench, and the contributions made to the jurisprudence of the Court by those whose judgment has been ripened by the responsibilities of administration in state and federal courts has been a conspicuous feature of its history.

"Mr. Justice Sanford had the advantage not only of careful preparation for the bar under the most exacting and stimulating teachers of the law, and of valuable experience in practice, but of many years of service as a District Judge of the United States. It was the distinguished success with which he met that long-continued test that led to his appointment to this bench. He came here as a graduate of the hard school of judicial experience, and he brought with him an intimate and precise knowledge of the problems of the federal courts. Never sacrificing the dignity, impartiality, and authority of his office as a District Judge to any desire for public favor, his ability and fidelity commanded their appropriate and gratifying reward in the esteem and confidence of the community that he served.

so that the bar and the Legislature of the State of Tennessee gave to the proposal of his appointment to this Court a unanimous indorsement. It was preeminently his judicial quality which won this general esteem. Without eccentricity, affectation, or irritation, but with simplicity, candor, patience, and thoroughness, he had applied himself to every judicial task, whether agreeable or irksome, and the applause which greeted the conduct of his office was a tribute to the standards of the community as well as to his own.

"In the District Court Judge Sanford carried a heavy burden of criminal cases, and, as exemplifying his dominant traits, I may quote what has been said by an eminent member of the bar who had long observed his manner of discharging this duty: 'In the administration of the criminal laws he was judge and not prosecutor. The government was only a litigant in his court suing for justice. It stood on a parity with the humblest citizen it accused. The constitution and laws of his country were to be obeyed, and not evaded, by judge, government, and accused alike.' Especially prominent in every activity was his unfailing courtesy and grace. Never lacking this quality himself, he looked for it in others, and in the District Court under his guidance there was afforded a notable illustration of the commendable restraint and propriety in speech which heighten rather than impair the effectiveness of forensic efforts.

"In addition to sound technical training as a lawyer and broad experience as a judge, Mr. Justice Sanford had resources of culture, developed by travel and liberal studies both here and abroad. He was interested in literature, music, and art, and those who enjoyed companionship with him were not disappointed because of limitations in his horizon. While the learning of the law was his supreme interest, it neither monopolized nor narrowed him. He was happy in his public addresses and brought to many important meetings the charm of eloquence. The members of the bar can not fail to remember with especial pleasure his address in London at the Lord Mayor's dinner at Guild Hall on the occasion of the visit, in 1924, of the representatives of the American Bar Association, and his graceful response to the welcome of the French bench and bar in the Palais de Justice in Paris. The lawyers and judges of France had the unusual and welcome opportunity of listening to an eminent member of the American judiciary paying a beautiful tribute in their own tongue to their achievements and aspirations.

"You have alluded, Mr. Attorney General, to the important opinions delivered for this Court by Mr. Justice Sanford, and, as illustrating the quality of his work, you have referred in particular to the Pocket Veto Case (279 U. S. 655) relating to the authority of the President, and also to the cases in which Mr. Justice Sanford dealt in clear and definite utterance with the power of the State as affecting freedom of speech, upholding the necessary authority to punish abuses of that freedom (Gitlow v. New York, 268 U. S. 652; Whitney v. California, 274 U. S. 357) while also sustaining the constitutional limitations which safeguard the liberty of the citizen (Fiske v. Kansas, 274 U. S. 380). In his work in the District Court Mr. Justice Sanford had given special attention to the difficult problems arising in the administration of the bankruptcy law, and he performed a noteworthy service in this Court in that branch of jurisprudence, writing a number of opinions in leading cases. Meek v. Centre County Banking Company (268 U. S. 426) and Taylor v. Voss (271 U. S. 176) are illustrations. Another outstanding judgment delivered by Mr. Justice Sanford was that in Liberty Warehouse Company v. Grannis (273 U. S. 70) maintaining the essential limitation of the jurisdiction of the Federal courts to 'cases' and 'controversies.' He reaffirmed with careful emphasis the fundamental principle, as he expressed it, 'that the judicial power vested by Article III of the Constitution in this Court and the inferior courts of the United States established by Congress thereunder, extends only to "cases" and "controversies" in which the claims of litigants are brought before them for determination by such regular proceedings as are established for the protection and enforcement of rights, or the prevention, redress, or punishment of wrongs; and that their jurisdiction is limited to cases and controversies presented in such form, with adverse litigants, that the judicial power is capable of acting upon them, and pronouncing and carrying into effect a judgment between the parties, and does not extend to the determination of abstract questions or issues framed for the purpose

"In estimating the value of judicial work, it is well not to lay too much stress upon opinions which seem to have a particular importance because of the public attention they receive or the spectacular circumstances of the controversies to which they are addressed. Juristic achievements are not measured by the distinction of litigants, or the amount in controversy, or the dramatic setting which gives temporary notoriety. The most worthy performance of judicial duty in the careful analysis of facts, in exact reasoning, and in the observance of a correct perspective in bringing the results of earlier controversies to their appropriate present service, may be found in cases which attract at the time little attention on the part of the general public, but achieve importance in the annals of jurisprudence. The final reputation of a judge owes far less to contemporary estimate than to the inevitable later appraisal when his efforts find their appropriate historical setting.

"Mr. Justice Sanford was keenly aware of this, and, with philosophic bent and conscientious application, he was faithful to the judicial tradition, devoting the same care to every case which came before the Court, without regard to its rating in public opinion. He was ever intent upon the intrinsic quality of his work rather than upon adventitious circumstance.

"Although cut off in mid-career, as judicial careers are reckoned, we gratefully recognize the long service that he rendered in a life which enjoyed a succession of deserved honors and was crowned by the fulfillment of a worthy ambition. He met every responsibility with integrity of motive and singleness of purpose, and he discharged every trust with complete fidelity. His life is epitomized in his own words: 'Youth and age have come; youth rejoicing in the splendor of life's morning; and age, steadfast, in the majesty of its noonday, serene in the tender glow of its evening sky.' In the midst of that serenity, the final summons came, and he was taken from us. Mourning our loss, but enriched by the memory of his friendship and cooperation, we renew our labors."

In re disbarment of

Harold J. Bandy.

It being represented to the Court that Harold J. Bandy, of Granite City, State of Illinois, a member of the Bar of this Court, did, on September 11, 1931, cause the case of Harry Blockburger v. The United States of America to be docketed in this Court as No. 374, October Term, 1931, and did, on September 19, 1931, formally enter his appearance in this Court in that cause as counsel for the petitioner; that, for the purpose of complying with the rules of this Court requiring that the Clerk shall in all cases be satisfied as to the payment of fees and costs, the said Harold J. Bandy sent to the Clerk of this Court, under dates of September 7, 1931, and September 16, 1931, his checks for $10 and for $75, respectively, as deposits to secure the payment of esti ated Clerk's fees and printing costs in said cause; that payment of said checks was refused by the drawee bank and that the said checks were returned to the Clerk marked "Insufficient funds"; that the said Bandy has failed to reply to, and has refused to pay the charges upon, a telegram sent to him by the Clerk on September 28, 1931, in respect to such checks, and has failed to reply to a letter addressed to him by the Clerk on September 29, 1931, on the same subject, or to a further letter, dated October 7, 1931, in which the Clerk earnestly requested him to make immediate reply, since the petition of the said Blockburger for a writ of certiorari would be due for submission to this Court on Monday, October 12, 1931,

Now, therefore, It is ordered that the said Harold J. Bandy show cause, if any there be, on or before Monday, October 26th next, by written response to this rule, why his name should not be stricken from the roll of attorneys admitted to practice before the bar of this Court, on the ground that he has failed to demean himself, as an attorney and counsellor of this Court, uprightly, and according to law, in keeping with the obligation of his oath.

630, O.T. 1930.
General Electric Company.

It is ordered by the Court that the opinion in this case be amended as follows:

(1) By substituting for the words "In July, 1912," in the 12th line of the last paragraph of the opinion, the following: "August 20, 1912, the earliest date claimed for Langmuir, was rejected, rightly, we think, by the District Court, which held that Langmuir was anticipated by Arnold in November, 1912. But before the earlier date,"

(2) By substituting for the third sentence from the end of the opinion, the following: "By August, 1912, the Telegraph Company used DeForest amplifying audions at 54 volts and by November, they were used by another at 67½ volts. This was possible only because the tubes had thus been exhausted of gas which would otherwise have ionized with blue glow at from 20 to 30 volts."

In re: disbarment of William E. Baff.

A rule having been issued by this Court on March 25, 1931, directing William E. Baff to show cause why he should not be disbarred from the practice of the law in this Court upon the ground that he had been disbarred in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of California; the rule, together with the return and answer of the said Baff thereto, having been referred to a Committee of the Bar of this Court to make report and recommendation respecting the final action to be taken by this Court conformably to Rule 2, paragraph 5 of the Rules of this Court; the said Committee having reported that the evidence does not warrant the conclusion that the disbarment of the said Baff by the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of California was disciplinary but rather because his name had been entered upon the rolls of the court without a proper showing of qualification; and the majority of said Committee having recommended that the rule to show cause heretofore issued against the said Baff be discharged on the ground that no charges had been made which would constitute a ground for his disbarment by this Court upon paragraph 5 of Rule 2,

It is ordered that the rule to show cause issued against the said Baff March 25, 1931, be, and the same hereby is, discharged.

And it having been represented to the Court that the said Baff was disbarred from the practice of the law in the United States Patent Office on March 18, 1921, upon charges of misconduct; that his application to be re-registered as a member of the Patent Office Bar was denied upon March 28, 1929, by the Commissioner of Patents; that the action of the Commissioner of Patents in refusing recognition to the said Baff as a patent attorney was sustained by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on February 19, 1931; and the Court being of the opinion that it possesses inherent power to inquire into the conduct of members of the Bar of this Court and is not limited

It is further ordered that a rule issue, returnable on Monday, November 30th next, to the said William E. Baff, ordering him to show cause why he should not be disbarred from the practice of the law in this Court, and his name stricken from the roll of attorneys admitted to practice before this Court, upon the ground of misconduct as shown by the Patent Office proceedings and the action of the court thereon as above mentioned.

It is ordered by this Court that the accompanying correspondence between members of the Court and Mr. Justice Holmes, upon his retirement as an Associate Justice of the Court, be this day spread upon the record, and that it also be printed in the reports of the Court.

Supreme Court of the United States,
Washington, D. C., January 12, 1932.

Dear Justice Holmes:

We can not permit your long association in the work of the Court to end without expressing our keen sense of loss and our warm affection. Your judicial service of over forty-nine years - twenty years in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and twenty-nine years upon this bench - has a unique distinction in uninterrupted effectiveness and exceptional quality. Your profound learning and philosophic outlook have found expression in opinions which have become classic, enriching the literature of the law as well as its substance. With a most conscientious exactness in the performance of every duty, you have brought to our collaboration in difficult tasks a personal charm and a freedom and independence of spirit which have been a constant refreshment. While we are losing the privilege of daily companionship, the most precious memories of your unfailing kindliness and generous nature abide with us, and these memories will ever be one of the choicest traditions of the Court.

Deeply regretting the necessity for your retirement, we trust that - relieved of the burden which had become too heavy - you may have a renewal of vigor and that you may find satisfaction in your abundant resources of intellectual enjoyment.

Affectionately yours,

Charles E. Hughes,
Willis Van Devanter,
James C. McReynolds,
Louis D. Brandeis,
George Sutherland,
Pierce Butler,
Harlan F. Stone,
Owen J. Roberts,

Mr. Justice Holmes.

Supreme Court of the United States,
Washington, D. C., January 12, 1932.

My Dear Brethren:

You must let me call you so once more. Your more than kind, your generous, letter touches me to the bottom of my heart. The long and intimate association with men who so command my respect and admiration could not but fix my affection as well. For such little time as may be left for me I shall treasure it as adding gold to the sunset.

Affectionately yours,

O. W. Holmes,

The Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States of America.

Should the appellee, or his counsel, desire additional portions of the record incorporated into the transcript he or his counsel shall file with the clerk of the lower court his praecipe, within ten days thereafter (unless the time be enlarged by a judge of the lower court or a justice of this court), indicating the additional portions of the record desired to be included. See Equity Rules, 75–77, 226 U. S., Appendix, p. 28, and 286 U. S. —.

The clerk of the lower court shall transmit to this court as the transcript of the record only the portions of the record covered by such designations.

The parties or their counsel may by written stipulation filed with the clerk of the lower court indicate the portions of the record to be included in the transcript, and the clerk shall then transmit only the parts designated in such stipulation.

In all cases the clerk shall include in the transcript all papers filed under authority of rule 12. See Rule 12, paragraph 4.

If this court shall find that any portion of the record unnecessary to a proper presentation of the case has been incorporated into the transcript at the instance of either party, the whole or any part of the cost of printing and the clerk's fee for supervising the printing may be ordered to be paid by the offending party.

RULE 12

Jurisdiction of this Court to review upon appeal

1. Upon the presentation of a petition for the allowance of an appeal to this court, from any court, to any judge or justice empowered by law to allow it, there shall be presented by the applicant a separate typewritten statement particularly disclosing the basis upon which it is contended that this court has jurisdiction upon appeal to review the judgment or decree in question. The statement shall refer distinctly (a) to the statutory provision believed to sustain the jurisdiction, (b) to the statute of the state, or statute or treaty of the United States, the validity of which is involved (giving the volume and page where the statute or treaty may be found in the official edition), setting it out verbatim or appropriately summarizing its pertinent provisions; and (c) to the date of judgment or decree sought to be reviewed and the date upon which the application for appeal is presented. The statement shall show that the nature of the case and of the rulings of the court was such as to bring the case within the jurisdictional provision relied on, and shall cite the cases believed to sustain the jurisdiction.

If the appeal is from an interlocutory decree of a specially constituted District Court of the United States (Judicial Code, sec. 266; U. S. C., tit. 28, sec. 380), the statement must also include a showing of the matters in which it is claimed that the court has abused its discretion in granting or denying the interlocutory injunction. (Alabama v. United States, 279 U. S. 229.)

2. If the appeal is allowed, the appellant shall serve upon the appellee within five days after such allowance (a) a copy of the petition for and order allowing the appeal, together with a copy of the assignments of error and of the statement required by paragraph 1 of this rule, and (b) a statement directing attention to the provisions of paragraph 3 of this rule. Proof of service of the papers required by this paragraph to be served shall be filed forthwith with the clerk of the court possessed of the record, and shall be incorporated by him in the transcript of record prepared for this court upon the appeal.

3. Within 15 days after such service the appellee may file with the clerk of the court possessed of the record, and serve upon the appellant, a typewritten statement disclosing any matter or ground making against the jurisdiction of this court asserted by the appellant. There may be included in, or filed with, such opposing statement, a motion by appellee to dismiss or affirm. Where such a motion is made, it may be opposed as provided in rule 7, paragraph 3.

4. The clerk of the court possessed of the record shall include the statements and motions, required and permitted to be filed under the provisions of this rule, in the transcript of record prepared for the use of this court on the appeal, anything in the præcipes or stipulations of the parties (rule 10, paragraph 2) to the contrary notwithstanding.

5. After the case shall have been docketed in this court by the appellant, and the transcript of record filed (rule 11, paragraph 1), the clerk of this court shall forthwith print the appellant's statement required by paragraph 1 of this rule and the opposing statement, and motions, if any, permitted by paragraph 3 of this rule, and the clerk shall thereupon distribute such printed papers to the court for its consideration.

At the time of docketing the case the appellant shall make such cash deposit with the clerk, in addition to such deposit as may be required under rule 13, paragraph 1, as shall be necessary to defray the cost of printing 40 copies of his statement filed pursuant to paragraph 1 of this rule; and the appellee, upon demand, shall forthwith deposit with the clerk a sum sufficient to cover the cost of printing 40 copies of any statement or motions filed under paragraph 3 of this rule.

6. If either appellant or appellee fails to comply with the provisions of this rule, the clerk of this court shall report such failure to the court immediately so that this court may take such action as it deems proper.

RULE 13, PARAGRAPH 2

Immediately after the designation of the parts of the record to be printed or the expiration of the time allotted therefor (see paragraph 9 of this rule), the clerk shall make an estimate of the cost of printing the record, his fee for preparing it for the printer and supervising the printing, and other probable fees, and shall furnish the same to the party docketing the case. If such estimated sum be not paid on or before a date designated by the clerk of this court in each case, it shall be the duty of the clerk to report that fact to the court, whereupon the cause will be dismissed, unless good cause to the contrary is shown.

RULE 13, PARAGRAPH 9

When the record is filed, or within five days thereafter, the appellant shall file with the clerk a definite statement of the points on which he intends to rely and of the parts of the record which he thinks necessary for the consideration thereof, with proof of service of the same on the adverse party. The adverse party, within 10 days after service of the statement and designation required to be filed by appellant may designate in writing, filed with the clerk, additional parts of the record which he thinks material; and, if he shall not do so, he shall be held to have consented to a hearing on the parts designated by the appellant. The parts of the records so designated by one or both of the parties, and only those parts, shall be printed by the clerk. The statement of points intended to be relied upon and the designations of the parts of the record to be printed shall be printed by the clerk with the record. He shall, however, omit all duplication, all repetition of titles, and all other obviously unimportant matter, and make proper note thereof. The court will consider nothing but the points of law so stated and the parts of the record so designated. If at the hearing it shall appear that any material part of the record has not been printed, the appeal may be dismissed or such other order made as the circumstances may appear to the court to require. If either party shall have caused unnecessary parts of the record to be printed, such order as to costs may be made as the court shall think proper.

The fees of the clerk under rule 32, paragraph 6, shall be computed on the folios in the record as filed, and shall be in full for the performance of his duties in that regard.

RULE 38, PARAGRAPH 2

The petition shall contain only a summary and short statement of the matter involved and the reasons relied on for the allowance of the writ. A supporting brief may be included in the petition, but, whether so included or presented separately, it must be direct, concise, and in conformity with rules 26 and 27. A failure to comply with these requirements will be a sufficient reason for denying the petition. See United States v. Rimer, 220 U. S. 547; Furness, Withy & Co. v. Yang Tze Insurance Assn., 242 U. S. 430; Houston Oil Co. v. Goodrich, 245 U. S. 440; Layne & Bowler Corporation v. Western Well Works, 261 U. S. 387, 392; Magnum Import Co. v. Coty, 262 U. S. 159, 163; Southern Power Co. v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 263 U. S. 508. Forty printed copies of the petition and supporting brief shall be filed. The petition will be deemed in time when it, the record, and the supporting brief, are filed with the clerk within the period prescribed by section 8 of the act of February 13, 1925.

RULE 38, PARAGRAPH 3 (A)

If the date for filing a brief in opposition falls in the summer recess, the brief may be filed within 40 days after the service of the notice, but this enlargement shall not extend the time to a later date than September 10.

RULE 38, PARAGRAPH 4

Upon the expiration of the period for filing the respondent's brief, or upon an express waiver of the right to file or the actual filing of such brief in a shorter time, the petition, record, and briefs shall be distributed by the clerk to the court for its consideration.

RULE 41, PARAGRAPH 4

A petition to this court for a writ of certiorari to review a judgment of the Court of Claims shall be accompanied by a certified transcript of the record in that court, consisting of the pleadings, findings of fact, judgment and opinion of the court, but not the evidence. The petition shall contain only a summary and short statement of the matter involved and the reasons relied on for the allowance of the writ, but may be accompanied by a brief to conform to rules 26 and 27 as to form. The petition, brief, and record shall be filed with the clerk and 40 copies shall be printed under his supervision. The record shall be printed in the same way and upon the same terms that records on appeal are required to be printed. The estimated costs of printing shall be paid within five days after the estimate is furnished by the clerk and if payment is not so made the petition may be summarily dismissed. When the petition, brief, and record are printed the petitioner shall forthwith serve copies thereof on the respondent, or his counsel of record, and shall file with the clerk due proof thereof.

RULE 41, PARAGRAPH 5

Within 20 days after the petition, brief, and record are served the respondent may file with the clerk 40 printed copies of an opposing brief, conforming to rules 26 and 27. Upon the expiration of that period, or upon an express waiver of the right to file or the actual filing of such brief in a shorter time, the petition, briefs, and record shall be distributed by the clerk to the court for its consideration.

The provision of subdivision (a) of paragraph 3 of rule 38 shall apply to briefs in opposition to petitions for writs of certiorari to review judgments of the Court of Claims.

RULE 48, PARAGRAPH 2

Under the act of January 31, 1928, as amended by the act of April 26, 1928, the review which theretofore could be had in this court on writ of error may now be obtained on an appeal. But the appeal thereby substituted for a writ of error must be sought, allowed, and perfected in conformity with the statutes theretofore providing for a writ of error. The appeal can be allowed only on the presentation of a petition showing that the case is one in which, under the legislation in force when the act of January 31, 1928, was passed, a review could be had in this court on writ of error. The petition must be accompanied by an assignment of errors (see rule 9), and statement as to jurisdiction (see rule 12), and the judge or justice allowing the appeal must take proper security for costs and sign the requisite citation to the appellee. See paragraph 1 of rule 10 and paragraph 1 of rule 36. The citation must be served on the appellee or his counsel and filed, with proof of service, with the clerk of the court in which the judgment to be reviewed was entered. The mode of obtaining a supersedeas is pointed out in paragraph 2 of rule 36.

ORDER

Paragraph (b) of rule 75 of the rules of practice in equity heretofore promulgated by this Court (226 U. S., Appendix) is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The evidence to be included in the record, except expert testimony, shall not be set forth in full, but shall be stated in simple and condensed form, all parts not essential to the decision of the questions presented by the appeal being omitted and the testimony of witnesses being stated only in narrative form, save that if either party desires it, and the court or judge so directs, any part of the testimony shall be reproduced in the exact words of the witness. The duty of so condensing and stating the evidence shall rest primarily on the appellant, who shall prepare his statement thereof and lodge the same in the clerk's office for the examination of the other parties at or before the time of filing his praecipe under paragraph (a) of this rule. He shall also notify the other parties or their solicitors of such lodgment and shall name a time and place when he will ask the court or judge to approve the statement, the time so named to be at least ten days after such notice. At the expiration of the time named or such further time as the court or judge may allow, the statement, together with any objections made or amendments proposed by any party, shall be presented to the court or the judge, and if the statement be true, complete and properly prepared, it shall be approved by the court or judge, and if it be not true, complete, or properly prepared, it shall be made so under the direction of the court or judge and shall then be approved. When approved, it shall be filed in the clerk's office and become a part of the record for the purposes of the appeal."

ORDER

The rules of practice in equity heretofore promulgated by this Court (226 U. S., Appendix) are amended by including therein a new rule numbered 61½ and reading as follows:

"In all references to a master, either compulsorily by the court in cases where it has the power to make compulsory reference, or by consent of parties where consent is necessary, whether the reference be of all issues of law and fact, or only particular issues either of law or fact or both, the report of the master shall be treated as presumptively correct, but shall be subject to review by the court, and the court may adopt the same, or may modify or reject the same in whole or in part when the court in the exercise of its judgment is fully satisfied that error has been committed: Provided, That when a case or any issue is referred by consent and the intention is plainly expressed in the consent order that the submission is to the master as an arbitrator, the court may review the same only in accordance with the principles governing a review of an award and decision by an arbitrator."

ORDER

The rules of practice in admiralty heretofore promulgated by this Court (254 U. S., Appendix) are amended by including therein a new rule numbered 43½ and reading as follows:

ORDER

The General Orders in Bankruptcy heretofore promulgated by this Court are amended by including therein a new order, numbered XLVII, and reading as follows:

"The reports of referees in all cases and proceedings in bankruptcy shall be deemed presumptively correct, but shall be subject to review by the court, and the court may adopt the same, or may modify or reject the same in whole or in part when the court in the exercise of its judgment is fully satisfied that error has been committed: Provided, That when any matter is referred by consent of all parties in interest and the intention is plainly expressed in the consent order that the submission is to the referee as an arbitrator, the court may review the same only in accordance with the principles governing a review of an award and decision by an arbitrator."
